

Bata

©2024 Jim Cheff, all rights reserved.

Batas help
things grow.

Grow and grow and grow!

Batas are a big help in the garden.

Flying poopdragons
help fertilize the ground.

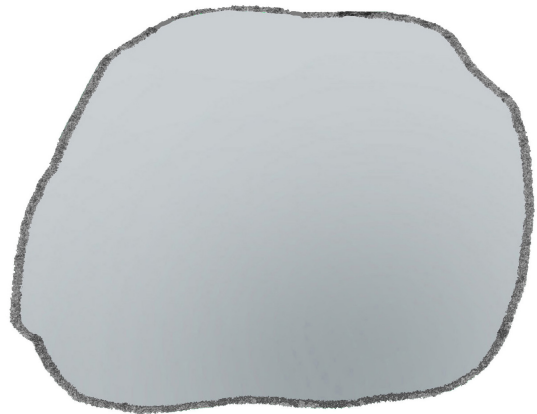

Look out, batas!

Once, a bata tried to make a rock grow.

Nothing
happened.

Batas are very friendly.

Which doesn't always work out.

This bata does
the carrot dance.

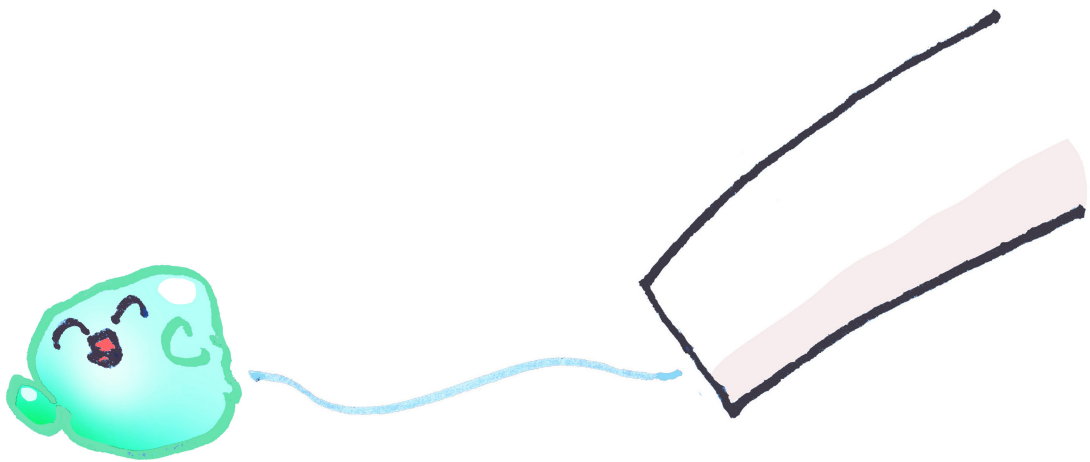

Best
acorn.

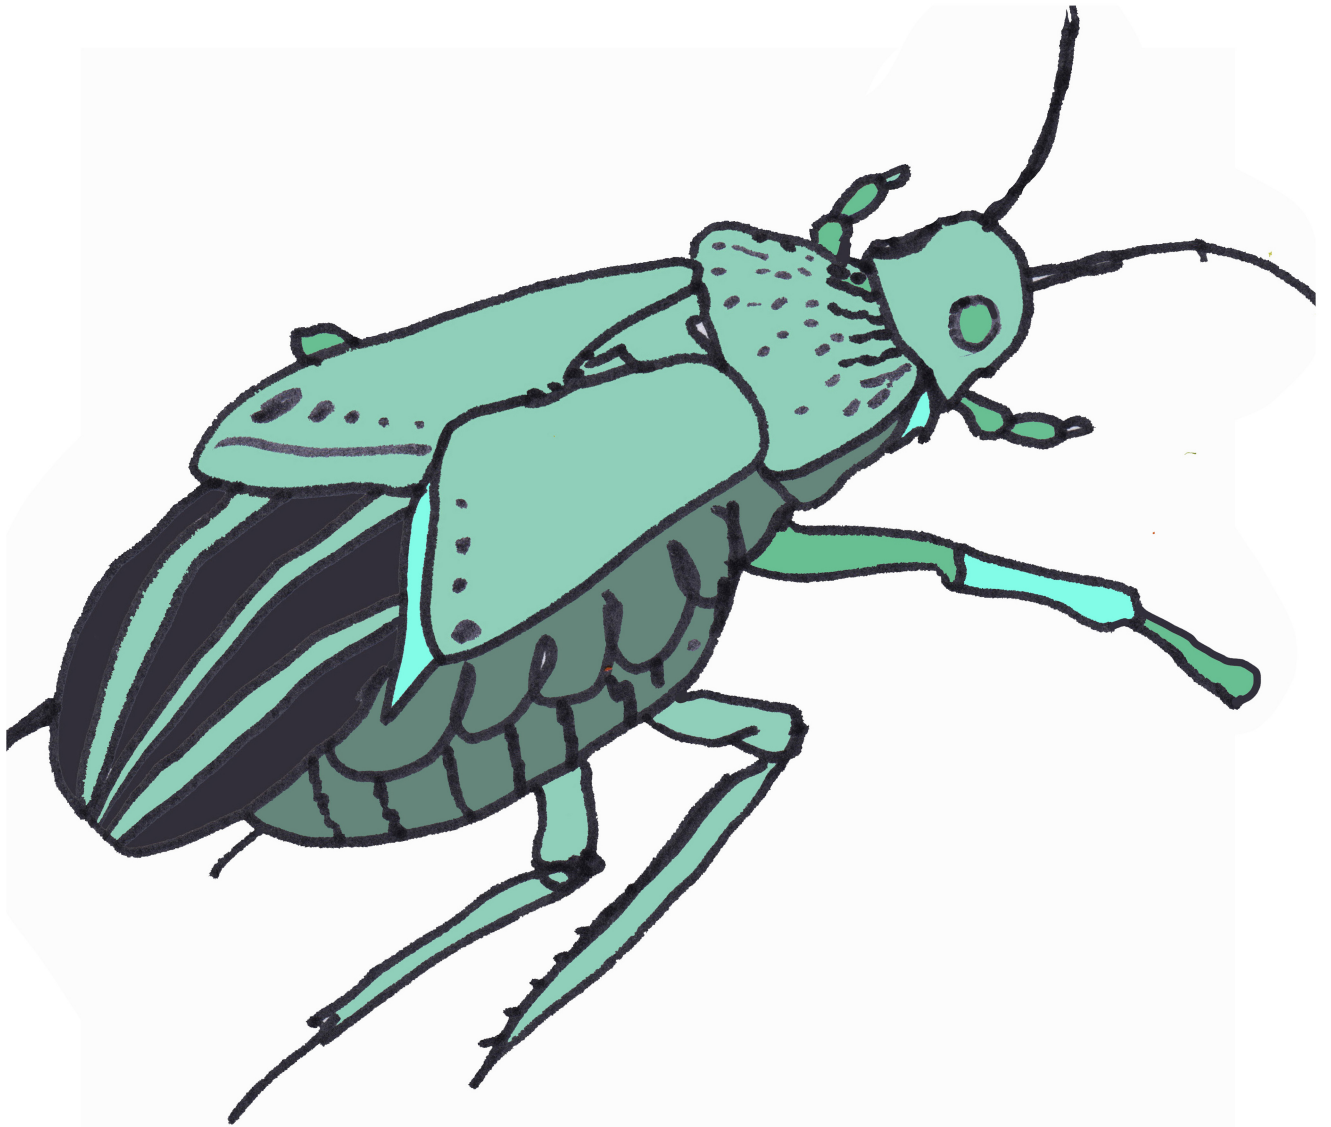

Why won't
the water come out?

A bata was stuck in
the spout!

Batas are afraid of bugs.

Batas like
the slide.

Apple inspection.

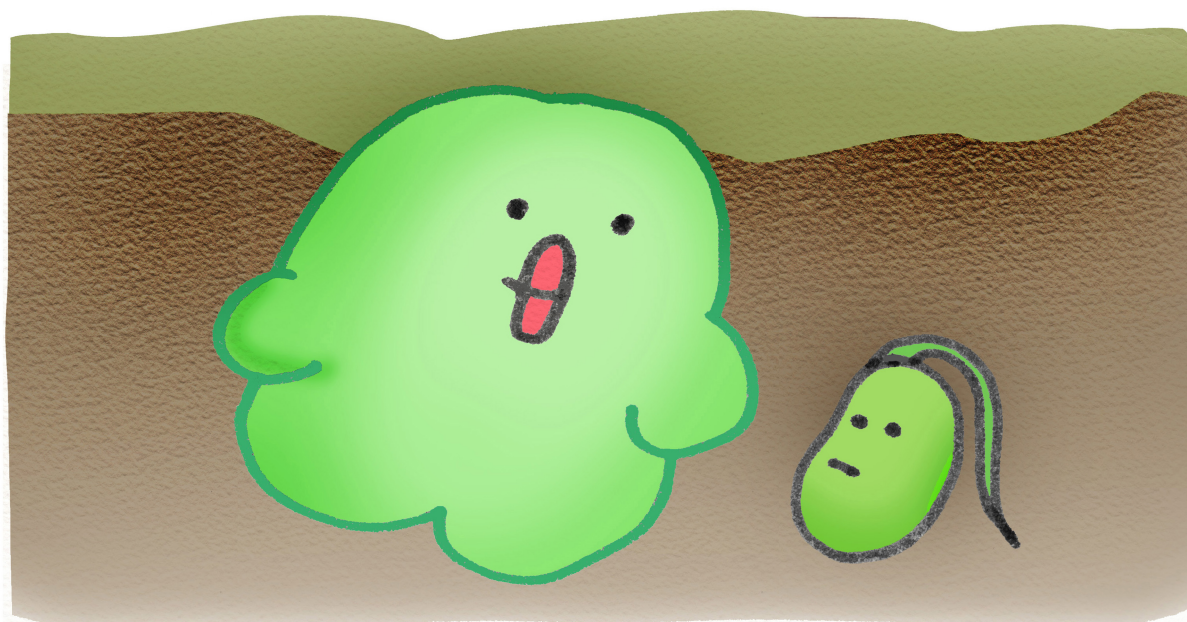

This bata is friends
with a bird.

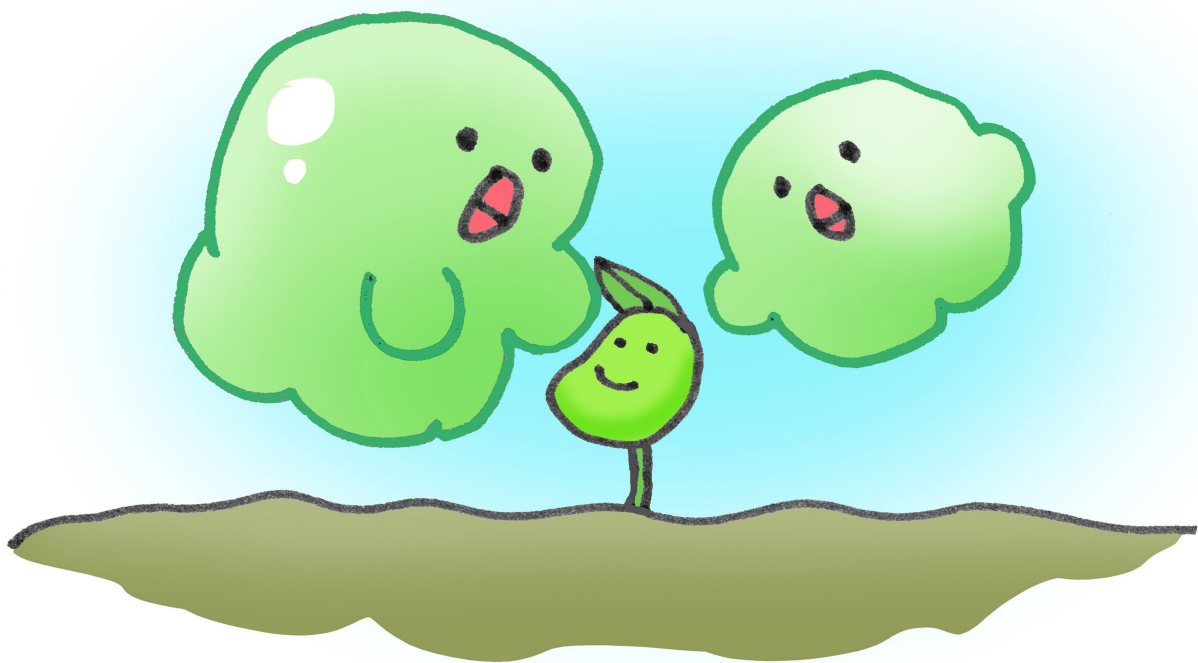

And this one's
b.f.f. is a toad.

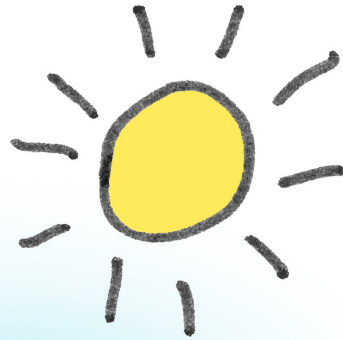

Batas wake up
the new seeds...

... and watch over
them as they grow.

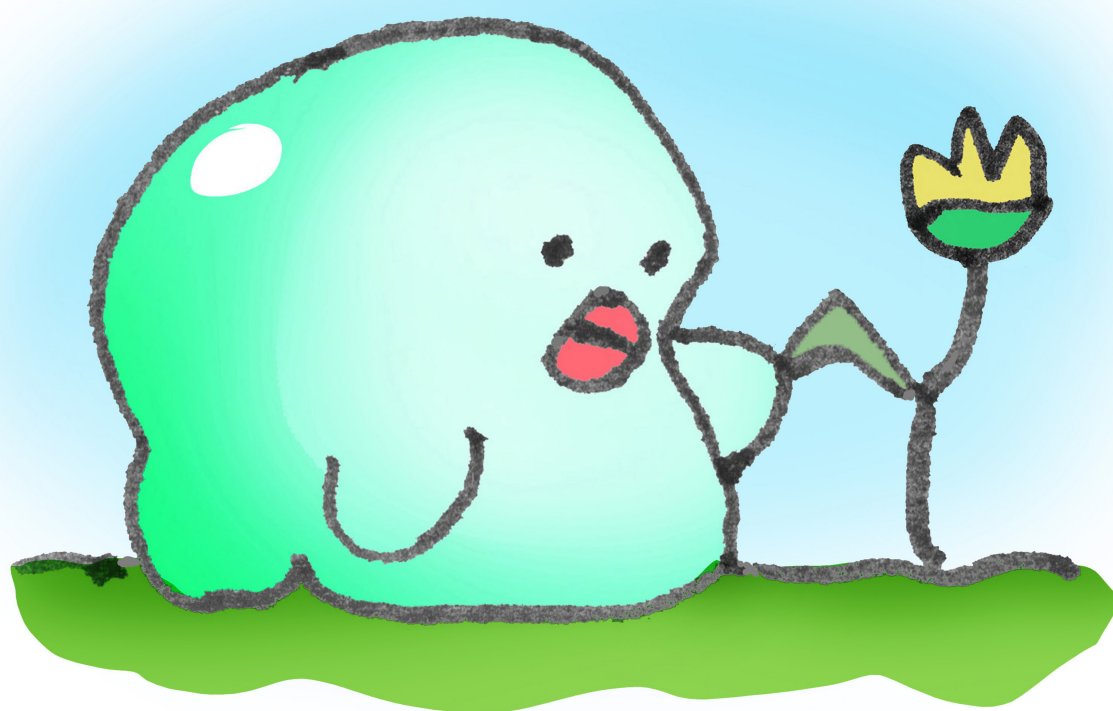

Batas love
the sun.

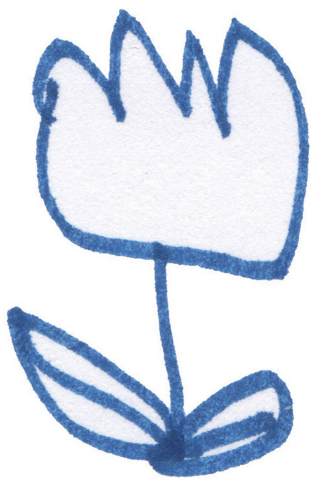

They love the moon, too.

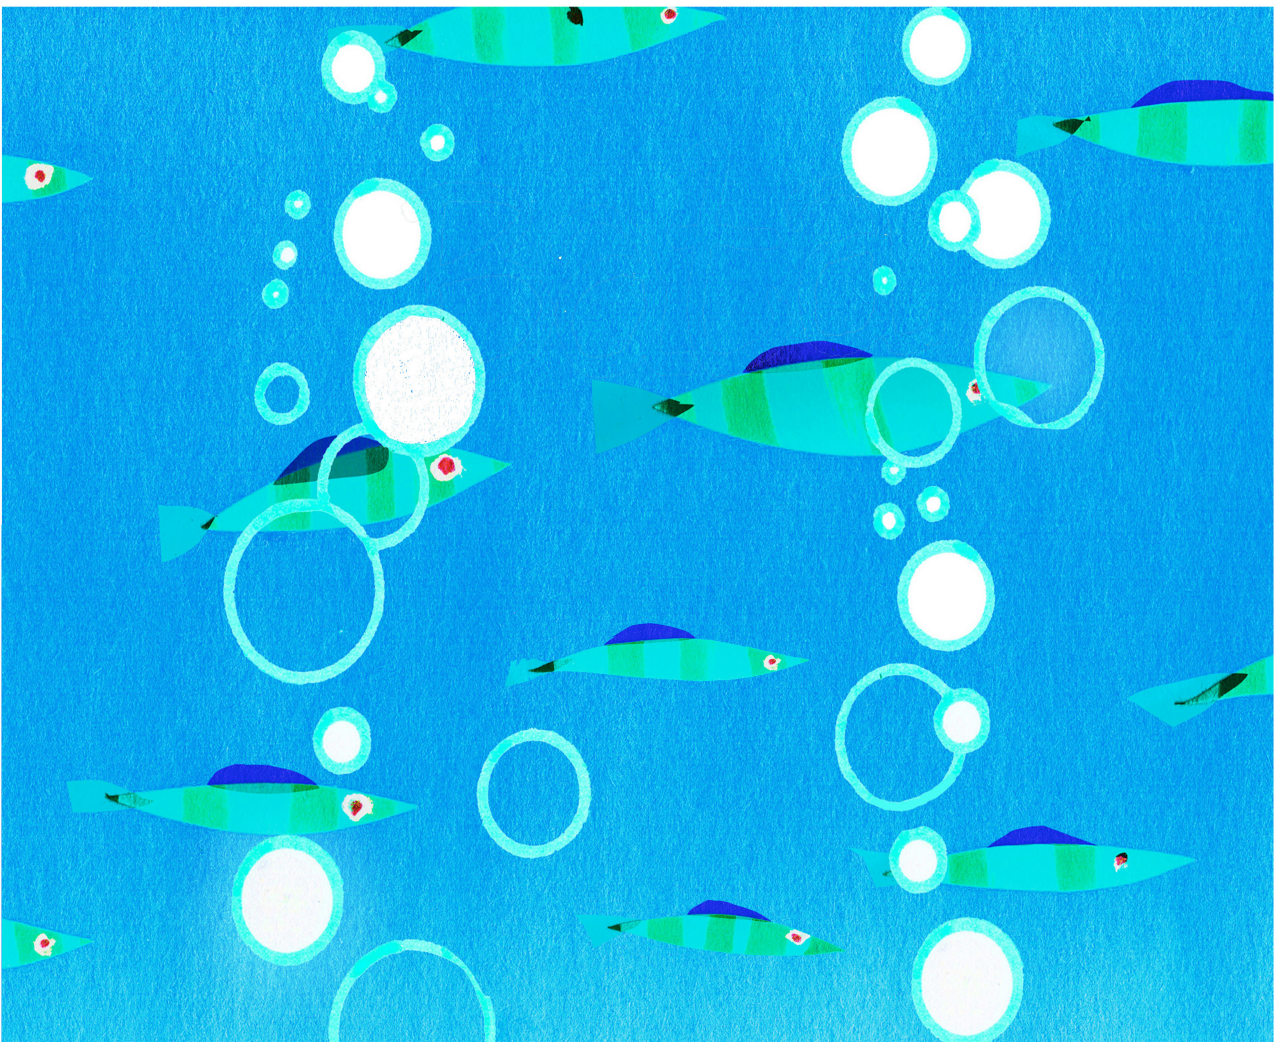

Partners.

underwater

Many plants and animals live underwater.

Batas live
underwater, too!

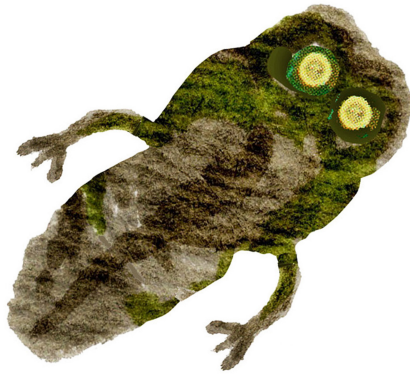

Their positive energy
helps things grow!

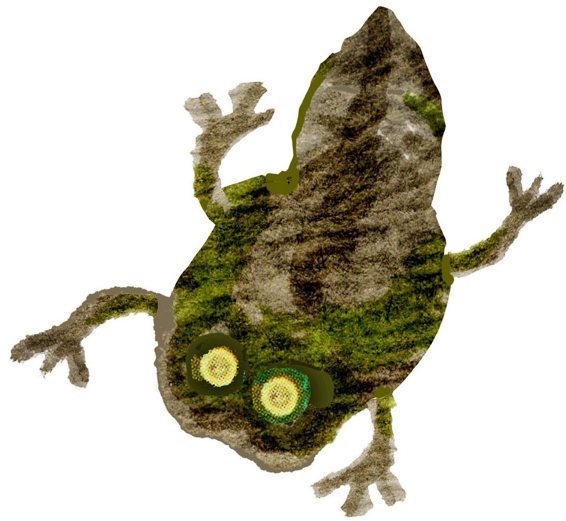

Tadpoles start out
with no legs at all.

Then they grow
two legs ...

... then,
two more ...

Until, one day,
they are a frog.

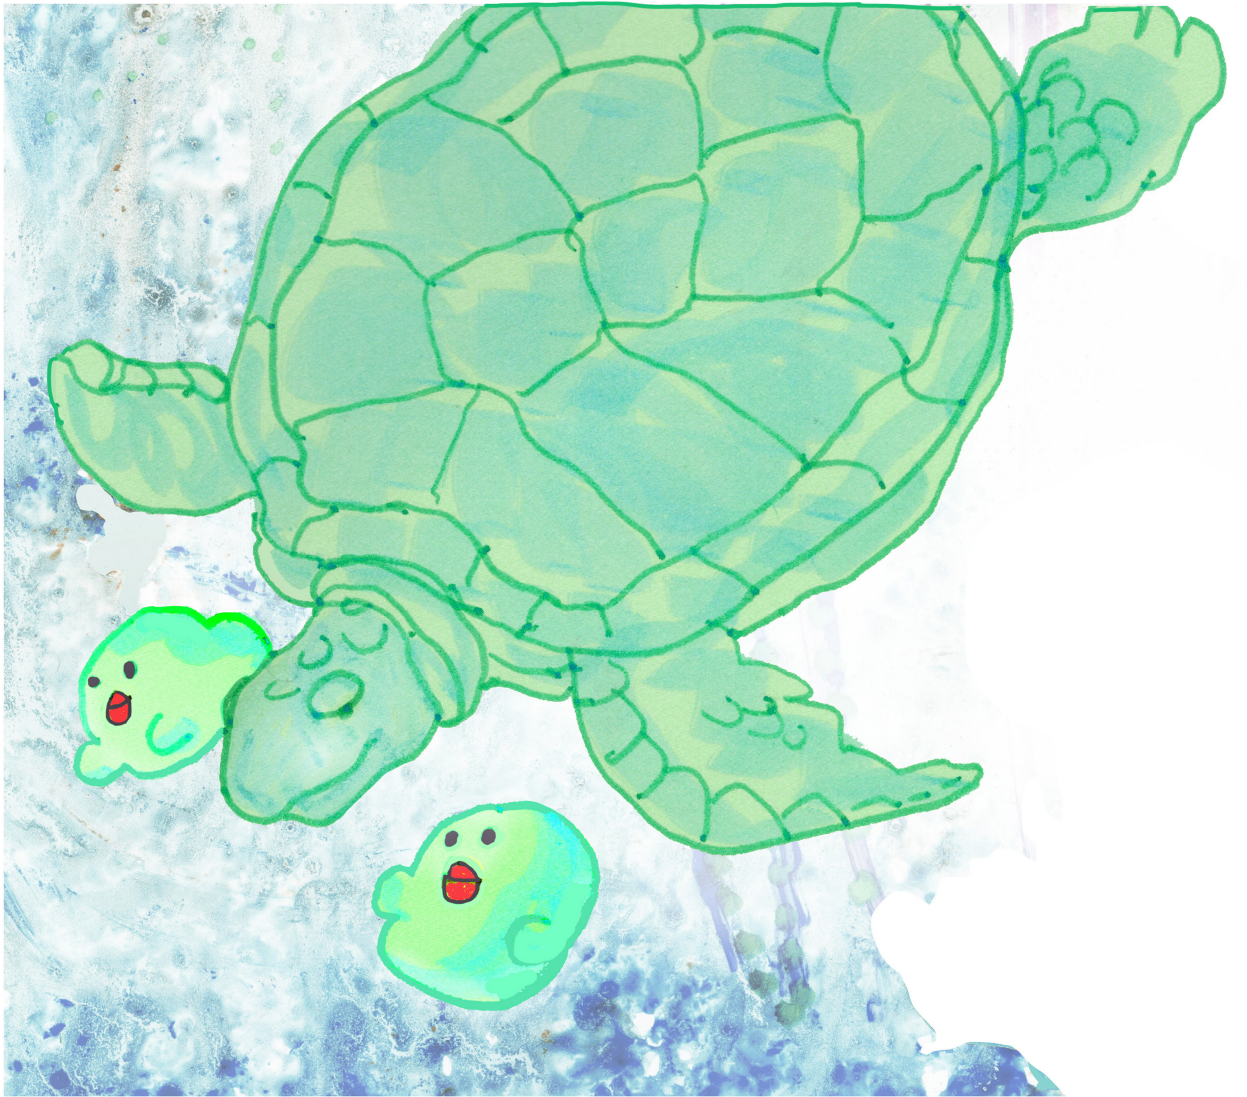

This bata does the
jellyfish dance.

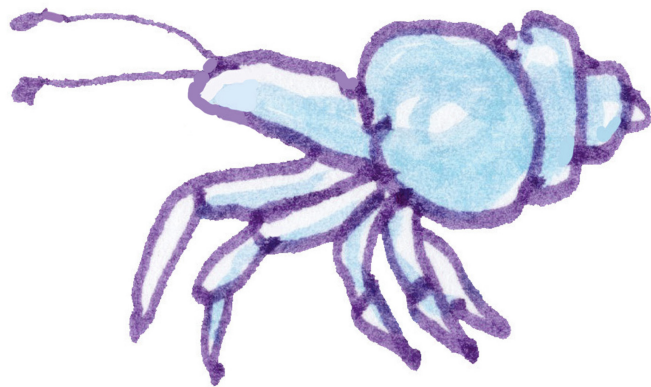

Fish are happy
when batas
come to visit.

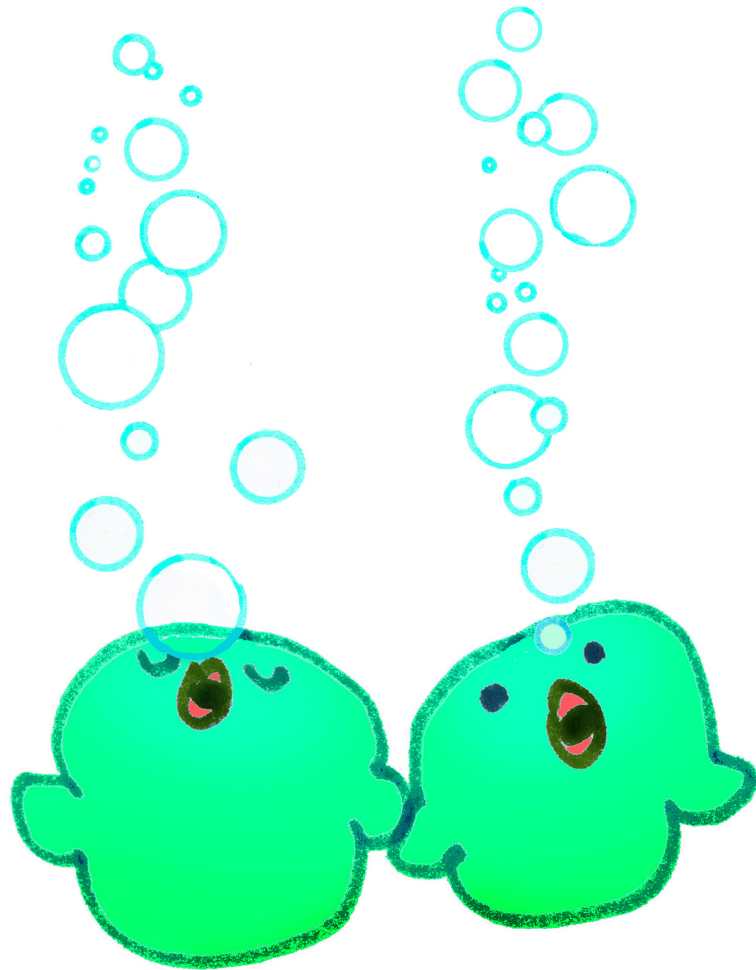

Two batas cheer
up a turtle.

Batas line up for fish rides.

Batas make bybbles
when they sing.

Batas say 'hi' to
the water lillies.

Batas play hide-and-
seek with the fishes.

Batas are happy chatting with an octopus in the ocean.

They are happy
baby-sitting
the polliwogs
in a pond.

Deep-sea batas are very large.

They fill the ocean with their positive vibes!

Batas wish
you happiness
and peace.

Bata

underground

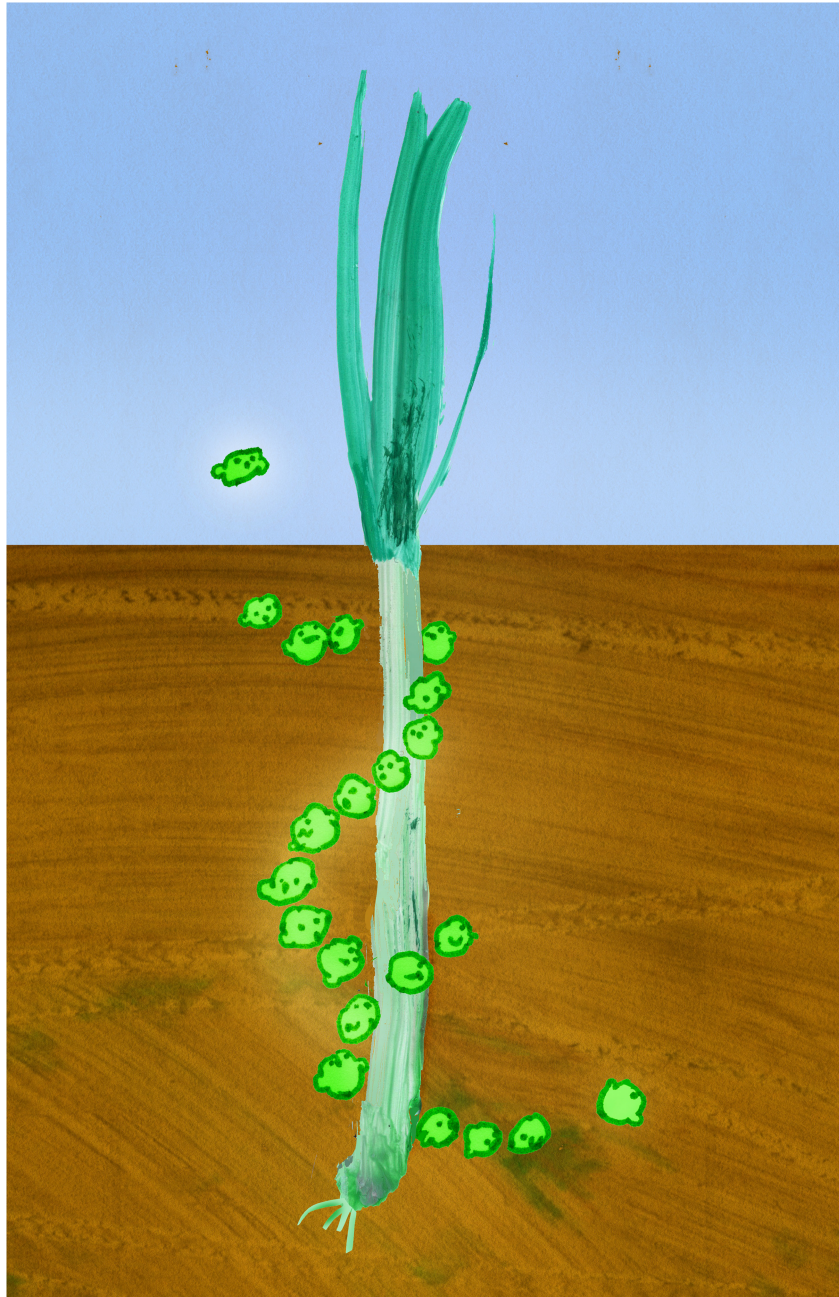

Many things
live
underground.

Batas live underground, too! They look after seeds, and help things grow. They laugh and have fun.

These
batas energize
an onion.

These
bataas
sing with a radish.

Some kinds of batas are made of stone.

They can be small as pebbles ...

... or big as boulders!

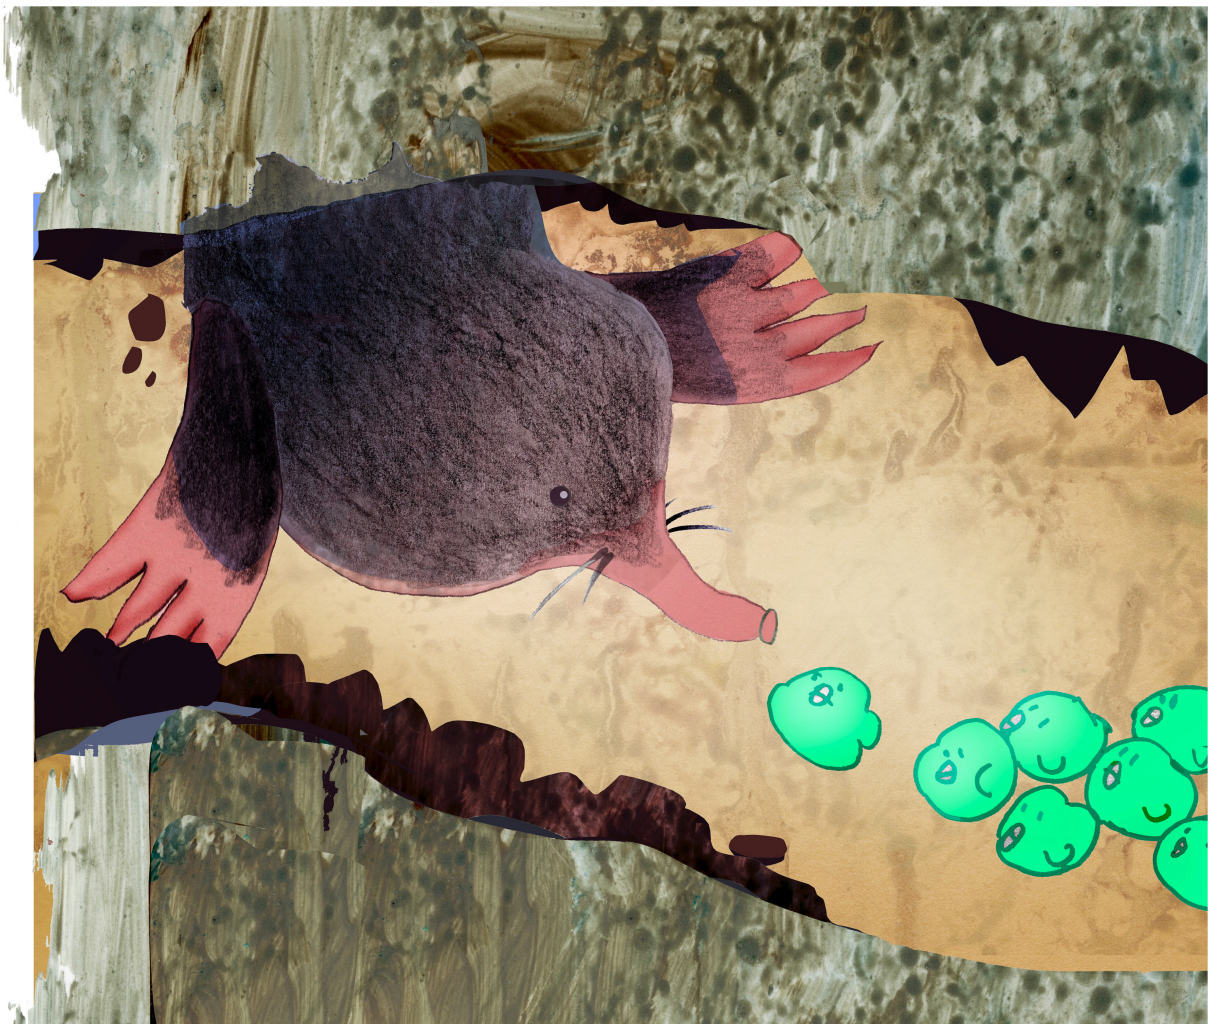

Stone batas don't fly.
They like to stay in one place and offer shelter.
Animals sleep under them
to get out of the heat.

Stone batas watch over

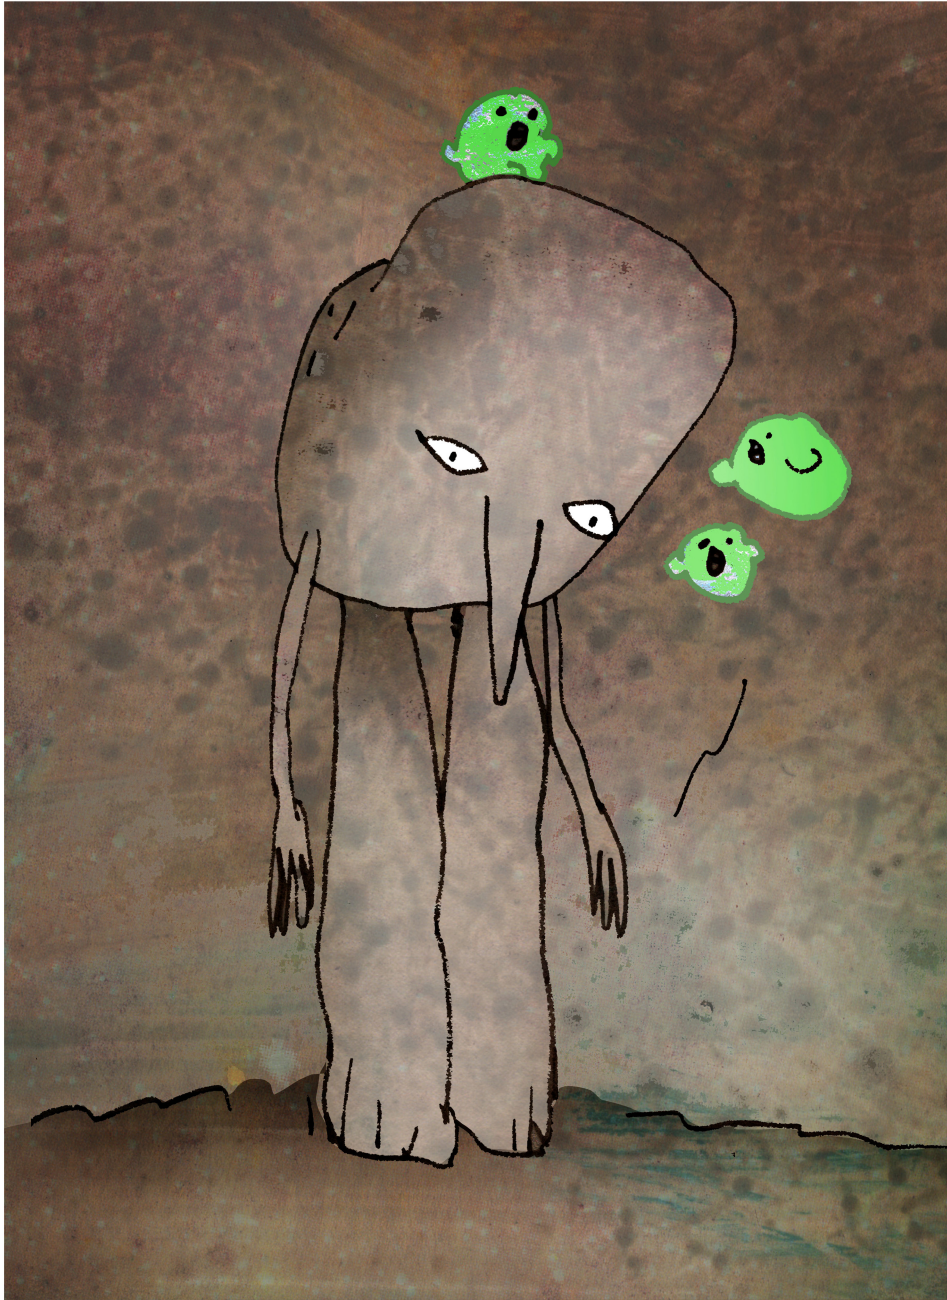

this hibernating bear.

A mole makes a surprise appearance.

This bata visits a lonely spider.

Batas are friends with cave trolls.

They help the batas
navigate the underground tunnels.

This worm wears a hat
on both ends.

Bata, Bata Underwater and Bata Undergrovnd written and illustrated by Jim Cheff, ©2024 Jim Cheff, all rights reserved. Contact at:
jimcheff@suddenlink.net

Jim Cheff is the creator of Mary Farfisa's Outer Space Radio Theater, a sci-fi-musical-comedy-adventure podcast for kids.

Listen to Mary Farfisa at rss.com/podcasts/maryfarfisashow